

Re Lyndsey Haskell

I commissioned Lyndsey to take photos at various locations around Brighton and Hove for Secret Brighton: An Unusual Guide, published by JonGlez, to join its growing collection of 'secret' city guides encouraging locals to rediscover their cities.

Lyndsey is a joy to work with from both a creative and practical perspective. She is able to follow a brief closely and listens well to what is asked of her. She has a talent for adapting quickly to new people and responded well to those she met at the locations around Brighton I commissioned her to visit.

She is great at spotting and drawing out an interesting angle, even out of the most unusual subject. She has a knack for seeing a place in a way other people might not, due to asking the right questions at the locations she visits.

Her photography style is honest yet captivating, each picture helping to tell a story and bring out the mystery of a place in a way that will transport the reader to the location, or entice them to want to visit and find out more.

She is focused, reliable, approachable, accommodating, flexible, fills you with confidence, and delivers on time with no drama. I wouldn't hesitate to hire Lyndsey in the future or recommend her and her work to others.
